subjects, for it prevents clogging of the veins and arteries and eliminates deposits of calcarious matter around the joints. If buttermilk is drunk freely as a beverage such degeneration may be postponed for many years. Buttermilk has also a stimulating

When the committee arose, Irvine renewed his motion and it was defeated, 14 to 15. Kelton had been excused, while Crofect and Mattox were out of the room. Ellis switched. Brooks made a motion simply to eliminate the section, but it was defeated, 13 to 12.

A call of the house was demanded by Brooks. He declared that he wanted everyone to go on record. Kelton and Mattox had left the building and Crofoot was finally located in a corner somewhere, eating candy with a stenographer and serenely ignorant of the fact that the fight was on once more.

Suggestions that the call be dispensed with were rejected by Brooks, even after Louch had suggested that the record of the committee of the whole be incorporated in the journal for the day. Brooks wanted to adjourn till Monday morning, giving the sergeant-at-arms instructions to bring in the absent members in the meantime. This was not permissible under the rules. Finally Brooks accepted the suggestion that the record of the committee of the whole be included in the journal.

Bradger Enters a Protest.

Then Bradner smoothly and suavely remarked that all action taken by the committee with reference to the penal code was null and void, because there had been no bill in the house. Sure enough, there was no bill of any kind on the deak of the reading clerk. Crofoot explained that No. 1 was in a committee rooms, being copied by a typewriter. He declared that it "was in very poor taste" for Bradner to make his objection after voting all the afternoon on the proposed amendments.

Brainer continued his objections and the bill was lugged in. This action, said Bradner, made no difference. When the committee was in session there had been no bill in the chamber.

Speaker Linney overruled Bradner, who immediately gave notice that he wished to cuter a protest in the journal. Hall and Whipple followed suit. The report of the committee of the whole was adopted and the penal and transferred to the expelling and enwas adopted and the penal code referred to the enrolling and en-

Experimental Wells.

Bills providing for the sinking of experimental artesian wells in all counties of Arizona are now pending in the house. Each carries with it an appropriation of $7500.

At the last session Billy Graham succeeded in getting through a bill appropriating that sum for an artesian well in the Suiphur Springs valley, of Cochise county. Drennan introduced a bill for another well in the Harqua Hala section of northern Yuma county, but it was not acted upon. Early in the present session Drennan reintroduced his measure.

Then Kane introduced a bill appropriating $7500 for an artesian well in Greenlee county.

Saturday the artesian will fever really got in its work and bills made their appearance in the house, each appropriating $7500 for a well in the locality mentioned: Santa Crus valley, Santa Crus county: Paradise valley, Marlcopa county; Winslow valley, Marlcopa county; Pleasant valley, Gila county; Skull valley, Eavapal county; Cast Grande valley, Eavapal county; Cast Grande valley, Favapal county; Craham county; Gonzales, near Springerville, Apache county.

Coconino and Gila counties are the held that the latter provision is not legal.

An interesting discussion on the proper marriageable age for girls was received from the Civic league of Phoenix. The league does not believe that the marriage of any girl under 18 should be permitted. In 1999 the territorial legislature lowered the marriageable age limit from 18 to 14. A girl over 18 is now permitted to marriageable age limit from 18 to 14. A girl over 18 is now permitted to marry without the consent of her parents. The women want this raised to 21.

Land Bills Pass.

Two of the land bills passed the house. They are house bill 12, providing an appropriation to continue the present land commission, and No. 11, prescribing the rights, duties and powers of the commission.

Craig, Crofoot, Curry, Gonzales, Kelton and Kirke Moore voted against the appropriation bill and all of them except Curry were opposed to No. 21. House bill 36, regulating the practice of pharmacy and saie of poisons, was passed without division, as was house bill 24, ceding jurisdiction to the foderal government over military reserves and sites for federal buildings within the state. Senate bill No. 4, the mortage code, was passed with a slight amendment.

Governor Hunt sent word to both houses that he had signed senate bill No. 2, giving the supervisors of Marriage codenty power to more at the proposed at once the foderal country power to proceed at once the foderal country proper the process of marriage code, was passed with a slight amendment.

Hubbell objected once more to working convicts in cosmetition with free

The committee on state institutions is perfectly willing to grant governor Hunt's request for an investigation of the prison by the state examiner, and house joint resolution No. 2 was introduced to provide for the examination. The committee has recommended that the resolution be adopted. A communication was received from the board of trade at Willoox offering 40 acres of land near that place for the state school for the deaf, dumb and While the bills were being debated the request of the governor for an investigation of the penitentiary by the state examiner became involved in

Breen declared that to send the state examiner, one of Hunt's ap-pointees' to investigate the prison would be folly, since he would be certain to bring in a favorable re-

Protest at a "Whitewash." Hubbell agreed with Breen. "You might just as well send my bookkesper to examine my business if you think I am crooked," he said. Furthermore, Hubbell claimed that the examiner cannot be required, under the law, to examine state institutions. He suggested that a committee from the house and senate be sent to Florence with an expert accountant.
"Do you believe that the state ex-aminer would bring in a false report?"

Sims asked.
"I don't know what he would do," "I don't know what he would do," Hubbell replied.

No. 14, which is the general law for employing convicts on highways, was reported for regular course.

No. 25, the prison farm bill, was sent to the public lands committee to look up some legal points. There does not appear to be much chance that No. 25 will pass, and No. 24 is likely to be killed in the house.
